

Ruhuna Journal of Science* (<http://rjs.ruh.ac.lk>) is recognized by *Master Journal List of Web of Science and World Catalogue of Scientific Journals

Ruhuna Journal of Science (RJS) published by the Faculty of Science, University of Ruhuna has been recognized by Web of Science (WoS), enlisting it in the Master Journal list, and indexed in 'Zoological Records' under WoS collection. The Journal is also included in the World Catalogue of Scientific Journals (WCOSJ).

RJS published its first Volume in 2006 as a printed multidisciplinary science journal with Prof. W.G.D. Dharmaratna as the Managing Editor and continued as an annual peer-reviewed journal until 2009. From 2014 onwards, RJS has been published bi-annually as an internationally recognized open access online journal which will reach its 11th annual Volume this year.

Since 2017, RJS has been registered as a contributor for the Open Archives Initiative (OAI), and included in the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ). It has also been included in the Sri Lanka Journals Online (SLJOL) which has TWO-STAR rating by the Journal Publishing Practices and Standards (JPPS). RJS's present Editorial Board which consists of renowned intellectuals around the world is headed by the continuing founding Managing Editor Prof. W.G.D. Dharmaratna as the Senior Editor-in-Chief and Dr. Janak J. Wedagedara (UK) and Prof. K.B. Suneetha Gunawickrama as two sectional Editors-in-Chief.

RJS welcomes scholarly research articles and short communications across a broad spectrum of pure and applied sciences, and interdisciplinary sciences. The journal adheres to all accepted publishing ethics and maintains its quality and standard through a stringent peer-review process. Further, the RJS is powered by the Open Journal System by Public Knowledge Project (<https://pkp.sfu.ca/ojs/>) which facilitates fully automated online submission, review, communication and publication aspects. All accepted manuscripts are assigned a DOI through the SLJOL registry.
